

Federal law allows 501(c)(3) employers to opt out of paying into the State Unemployment Insurance (SUI) program and instead reimburse the state for unemployment benefits paid out to separated employees. For many nonprofit employers, this is a cost savings opportunity when paired with appropriate risk management services. A typical 501(c)(3) employer may realize a potential savings in excess of 20% per year versus the tax associated with State-run SUI pools.

For 35 years, 501(c) Services has been managing unemployment programs for thousands of nonprofit employers, providing professional management services customized to match employer's financial goals and risk appetite.
